The following cards bearing dates from 1833 to '37 are numbered according to the arrangement I have made for a second edition of my Hard Times Tokens, the preparation of which was begun more than a year ago, and which will, I trust, be completed some time during 1897. The classification and descriptions are finished (numbering 157), but the search for historical notes which I aim to have accompany the series, together with the determining of the makers and their mints, is causing much unexpected delay. Already I have secured valuable data, much never before known to the collecting fraternity. But to gather now what might and should have been harvested thirty-five years ago is a task, though an interesting one, attended with considerable labor. I introduce the subject through this note, believing it fitting and opportune by reason of the gems found in the collection herein offered, which make up some of the most substantial parts of the new story.
